INTRODUCTION

The International Research Centre for Archaeology (IRCA), Brijuni-Medulin, was founded in 1994 as an organisational unit of the University of Zagreb on the initiative of the Institute of Archaeology of the Faculty of Philosophy of the University of Zagreb. The centre systematically promotes scientific research activity in the field of archaeology and works to preserve the heritage of monuments by organising archaeological excavations and through the conservation and display of antiquities in Istria, Croatia. The centre is noted for its cooperation with Croatian and foreign universities, for organising archaeological field work, and for establishing links with related institutions in Croatia and abroad. The IRCA is also active in promoting the archaeological and historical heritage of Istria, both inside and outside Croatia, by organising exhibitions, international archaeological conferences, and, from 1995 in publishing Histria Antiqua and Histria-Katalozi-Monografije [Histria-Catalogues-Monographs] (HKM). From 2007 to 2009, IRCA operated within the Juraj Dobrila University of Pula, and from 2009 it has been operating as a functional centre for archaeological research of the Institute of Social Sciences Ivo Pilar in Zagreb.

In the sixteen years of its work, the IRCA has conducted protective investigations on part of the necropolis of Burle near Medulin from the period of Antiquity to Late Antiquity (1st to 6th centuries AD) and on buildings from the period of Antiquity to Late Antiquity in Uvala Sv. Antuna i Sv. Lucije [the Bay of St. Anthony and St. Lucy] near Novigrad (1st to 4th centuries AD). The Centre has also conducted systematic excavations and conservation of the maritime Roman residential complex of Vižula near Medulin (1st century BC to 4th century AD) in cooperation with the archaeology departments of the universities of Zagreb and Zadar, the Department of Art History of the Faculty of Philosophy of Rijeka, and the Archaeological Museum of Istria in Pula. Cooperation is to be expanded with universities in Padua (Italy), Bordeaux (France), Barcelona (Spain), Cluj-Napoca (Romania), Koper (Slovenia), and Skopje (Macedonia). Special cooperation has been established with archaeological museum institutions in Zagreb, Zadar, Split and Osijek.

Under the high patronage of UNESCO and with the participation of scholars, fifteen international conferences of archaeology have taken place: Urban and Landscape Archaeology (1995); Harmony in Stone: Shaping, Building and Decoration History (1996); The Imperial Cult in the Eastern Adriatic (1997); The Roman Forum: An Economic, Cultural, and Cultic Centre (1998); Defence Systems Through the Ages (1999); The City of the Dead and the City of the Living (2000); Water as a Source of Life (2001); Settlements and Settling from Prehistory to the Middle Ages (2002); Economy and Trade through the Ages (2003); Cults and Beliefs through the Ages (2004); “Instrumenta Domestica” from Prehistory to Late Antiquity (2005); Viticulture and Olive Growing from Prehistory to the Middle Ages (2006); Otium - Leisure from Prehistory to the Early Middle Ages (2007); Routes and Trade, from Prehistory to the Early Middle Ages (2008); and Arts and Crafts from Prehistory to the Early Middle Ages (2009). In 1995, publication began of Histria Antiqua, an international archaeological review, under the UNESCO emblem. The review is distributed to 397 institutions in Croatia and abroad. The nineteen issues published so far have presented over 411 scientific and expert contributions on 6,527 pages of text and illustration, and the Centre's specialist library in Medulin has obtained 3,011 archaeological and historical works. Histria Antiqua is regularly presented at annual conferences and periodically at the Office of the Rector of the University of Zagreb, and in the UNESCO Palace in Paris. The publications of IRCA are referenced in the Bibliography of the History of Art (BHA) as the successor of the earlier index (Répetoire d'Art et d'Archéologie), through the Research Libraries Group and Art History Information Program / J. Paul Getty Trust (United States of America), as well as in the Instituts de l'Information Scientifiques et Techniques (INIST) of the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS), and since 2005 also in the Catalogue of the UNESCO Bibliographic Records (UNESDOC).

In 2000 and 2001, an exhibition entitled The Magic of Istria was organised in cooperation with the Museum of Archaeology of Istria and the Mission of the Republic of Croatia at UNESCO. The exhibition was shown in many European cities (Vienna, Trieste, Eisenstadt, Lisbon, Berlin, Hannover, Paris, Mostar, and Poreč). In 2009, an exhibition entitled “The Path of Antique Gods in Istria”, which is part of a larger project under the title “The Path of Antique Gods in the North Adriatic” (Padua, Pordenone, Genoa), was held in cooperation with the University of Padua, Department of Archaeology, Antique Topography.
